April 18, 2013

Dear Faculty Members:

The Spring 2013 General Faculty meeting will take place on Wednesday, April 24, 2013, from 3:00 to 5:00 pm in the Virginia Dare Room of the Alumni House.

The business section of this meeting will include consideration of and voting upon revisions to UNCG's Faculty Constitution. These revisions will extend to non-tenure-track faculty eligibility to serve as faculty senators, state requirements for the Faculty Senate's (University) Promotion and Tenure Committee, and lengthen, from one year to two years, the terms of the Chair and Secretary of the Faculty Senate, starting in the fall 2015 semester.

Given the significance of these changes, it is essential that all faculty make an effort to attend and vote.

The attached agenda provides details for the meeting. Please make time for yourself and participate.

Sincerely,

John Lepri

Remarks
The Chancellor’s opening remarks centered on “why we are here,” i.e., what is the state of the student experience at UNCG and how can it be improved? She spoke of the following concerns in regard to incoming students:

- Lack of preparation and focus
  - motivation for college level work, weak
  - students are not well-prepared academically
- Students come without clear academic goals, undecided and then drift
- Students have difficulty connecting classroom experience with life goals
- More than 70% work full-time or part-time to support the cost of attending school

We need to focus on what students expect and need:

- Clear plan for success -- direct guidance advice, beyond a list of courses to take, with a holistic approach
- Skills, abilities, perspectives and sensibilities for life-long learning
- Involvement with learning communities
- Critical thinking skills
- Knowledge of other cultures
- Understanding of their discipline, their field of study, and the challenges that go along with that field of study; how the major translates into their futures
- Opportunities for engagement with others
  - Team work skills and development
  - Making a difference; giving back; having an impact on the world; volunteer hours; service learning as a priority
- Their education will lead to personal development

We all need to see ourselves as part of the undergraduate experience, especially faculty: more interaction leads to more student success

What does a UNCG graduate look like? What do we expect? Experience and engagement characterize UNCG, e.g., DSBA (Do Something Bigger Altogether)

What are the components of a holistic experience at UNCG:
- Living-learning communities
- Community engagement
- Global experience
- Reflection: values/priorities; what does it mean to be a Liberal Arts University

There is a shift afloat to move from enrollment-based funding to performance-based funding. We need to focus on quality, diversity, access, and commitment; we need to view success beyond retention and graduation rates. The University will engage around the question in the coming year through a Quality Enhancement Plan as it relates to our SACS accreditation.

The Chancellor called for questions. There were none.

Notes on Revision of the Constitution and Bylaws

Faculty Government Committee

Bruce Kirchoff (Chair), Susan Collins, Laurie Kennedy-Malone, Mark Schumacher, Stuart Marcovitch (Senate Liaison)

April 4, 2013

The attached revision of the Constitution and Bylaws has been reviewed and approved by the Faculty Government Committee, and passed by the Faculty Senate at its April 3 meeting. In revising the Constitution the Faculty Government Committee made every attempt to preserve all of its current provisions, and all provisions that were passed by the Senate as bylaws since the Constitution was adopted. In doing this the Constitution and Bylaws have been significantly reorganized in ways that are explained here.

The Constitution is the document that defines the way in which the faculty’s right to advise the Chancellor is instantiated at UNCG. As explained in Article I, Section 2, the authority of the General Faculty derives from The Code of the Board of Governors of The University of North Carolina, Section 502.D(2), which gives the General Faculty the right to “advise the chancellor on any matters pertaining to the institution that are of interest and concern to the faculty,” and charging the Chancellor with establishing “appropriate procedures within the institution to provide members of the faculty the means to give advice with respect to questions of academic policy and institutional governance, with particular emphasis upon matters of curriculum, degree requirements, instructional standards, and grading criteria.” The Constitution is the document that defines how these duties are fulfilled and this authority is exercised on the UNCG campus.

The Constitution defines two major bodies of the faculty: the General Faculty (Article I); and the Faculty Senate (Article II), the legislative arm of the General Faculty. The powers and duties of these bodies are unchanged from those described in the current Constitution, but the order of presentation is considerably different.

One main difference in organization concerns the disposition of the committees. Neither the committees nor their charges have been modified, other than by incorporating the modifications that were part of the old Bylaws, those changes to committee structure approved by the Senate at its March 2013 meeting, and by the insertions of two minor clarifications to the charge of the Graduate Studies Committee, made at their request. However, the placement of the committee descriptions within the Constitution is different in the new version. In the current Constitution some committees are described in the Constitution itself, while others are not. The committees described in the current Constitution are those composed solely of Senators: the Senate Elections Committee, and the University Promotion and Tenure Committee (the Senate Bylaws Committee and the Senate Educational Standards Committee were composed of only of Senators, but were discontinued or merged with other committees by the Senate at its March 2013 meeting).

Because these committees are part of the current Constitution they can only be modified by a two thirds vote of a quorum of 45 voting members of the General Faculty. All of the other committees can be modified by a majority vote of the Senate. In the new Constitution, descriptions of all of the committees have been placed in the Bylaws of the Faculty Senate. In the future, the Senate will be able to modify all of the committee charges by a majority vote. This seems appropriate because these committees serve, and report to the Faculty Senate.
One committee requires special mention. The University Promotion and Tenure Committee reviews promotion and tenure dossiers according to the policies established in the Promotion, Tenure, Academic Freedom, and Due Process Regulations (The Regulations). During the recent revision of The Regulations the provisions of the Constitution relating to this committee were incorporated into the revised Regulations, and have been removed from the new Constitution.

One major difference between the current Constitution and the revised version is that the new Constitution allows full-time, non-tenure track members of the General Faculty to serve on the Senate. The change is highlighted in Article II, Section 1.2. It restricts non-tenure track faculty members (NTTF) to those who are full-time, voting members of the General Faculty (see Article I, Section 1.2). As part of this change there is a new provision, inserted by the Senate at their April 3 meeting, which assures that no more than 50% of the Senate will ever be composed of NTTF members (Article II, Section 2.3d).

Because the University Promotion and Tenure Committee (UPTC) consists solely of tenured member of the senate, the addition of NTTF to the Senate raised the question of the composition of the UPTC should there be insufficient tenured senators to populate it. This possibility has been addressed by adding the following provision to the description of the UPTC: “In the event that there are not enough tenured faculty members on Faculty Senate to serve on this committee, nominations for the remaining committee members will be solicited from the General Faculty and elected to the committee by the Faculty Senate.”

Although changes to the Constitution have been kept to a minimum, several changes were necessary or were requested by the Senate leadership, and are either highlighted or marked with Track Changes in the attached revision. The more major changes are highlighted. More minor changes, including editorial changes, are marked with track changes. Changes due to the actions of the Senate to remove or combine committees (March 2013 Senate meeting) are marked with Track Changes.

A note on Bylaws: The current Constitution allows both the General Faculty and the Faculty Senate to establish Bylaws. However, there are no current Bylaws of the General Faculty. This has been made explicit by creating a separate section of the Bylaws for the General Faculty and listing “NONE” as its content. As mentioned previously, all of the current Senate Bylaws have been incorporated at their appropriate places in the Constitution, or in the committee descriptions. The new Senate Bylaws consists solely of provisions related to the functioning of the Senate committees, and to the charges of these committees.

Additional changes to the Constitution include the extension of the term of the chair and the secretary of the Senate to two years with the concomitant ability of the Senate to remove sitting officers (Article II, Section 4.9); the ability of the Chair to schedule additional meetings during a month (Article II, Section 7.2); the ability for Senate votes to be conducted with an audience response system (Article II, Section 9.2); and the requirement that any ad-hoc committees established by the Senate be for fixed terms (Article 2, Section 11).
The Faculty Government Committee and the Senate believes that the new Constitution will serve the faculty well, and urges its passage by the General Faculty.

The current Constitution and Bylaws can be found at this link: http://facsen.uncg.edu/Content/Constitution_of_the_Faculty_and_Bylaws.pdf

Bruce Kirchoff, Chair of the Faculty Government Committee, would be happy to answer questions about the new Constitution and Bylaws either before, or at the April 24 General Faculty meeting (kirchoff@uncg.edu; 334-4953).

2. Voting members of the General Faculty who do not hold an administrative position higher than department head or chair and who have been employed at UNCG for two years may be elected to the Faculty Senate during their second or later year of employment, and are eligible to begin service on the Faculty Senate beginning in the fall of their third year.

4. If any positions on the Faculty Senate or its committees are not filled for any reason, these bodies may still function.

SECTION 2. Election of Senators

1. The voting members of the Faculty Senate shall consist of Senators elected from the electoral divisions defined below, and apportioned among them in the same ratio as the number of voting members of the General Faculty in each electoral division to the number of voting members of the General Faculty in the University.

2. The electoral divisions are:
   a. the College of Arts and Sciences,
   b. the Joseph M. Bryan School of Business and Economics,
   c. the School of Education,
   d. the School of Health and Human Sciences,
   e. the School of Music, Theatre and Dance,
   f. the School of Nursing,
   g. the University Libraries,
   h. the Joint School of Nanoscience and Nanoengineering.

3. The number of Senators to be elected from each electoral division shall be established according to the following procedure:
   a. An apportionment factor shall be computed by dividing the total number of voting members of the General Faculty into the number 36.
   b. The number of Senators from each electoral division shall be computed by multiplying the number of voting members of the General Faculty in that division by the apportionment factor, and rounding the product to the nearest integer greater than or equal to one.
c. The total number of voting members of the General Faculty used in these calculations shall be the number of voting General Faculty employed by the University at the beginning of the fall semester.

c\text{d. The percent of tenured or tenure track faculty elected from the electoral divisions shall be a minimum of 50%}.

4. Approximately one-third of the Faculty Senate shall be elected each year.

5. The normal term of elected service shall be three years beginning July 1 and end on June 30, although the terms of some seats may be reduced at the time of election if this is necessary to assure that approximately one-third of the Faculty Senate is elected each year. When deciding which seats should be given shorter terms, the general principle that seats from electoral divisions with more Senators should be given shorter terms should be followed, provided that each division retains a mix of terms in its seats (1, 2, and 3 years).

6. Each electoral division shall establish written procedures for electing its Senators, conducting the elections and announcing the results.

7. All voting members of the General Faculty are eligible to vote for Senators in their electoral division.

8. The Faculty Senate may decide at any time, by simple majority vote, to adjust the number used to determine the appointment factor (currently 36).

SECTION 3. Duties of the Faculty Senate

1. The Faculty Senate shall:

   a) Promote high educational standards at the University;
   b) Establish, review, evaluate and restructure the committees of the General Faculty Senate;
   c) Act on reports and recommendations from the committees of the General Faculty Senate;

The University of North Carolina at Greensboro Sustainability Council
Operating Papers
February 2013

Sustainability in institutions of higher education is characterized by activities that are ecologically sound, socially just, economically viable, and aesthetically engaged. Sustainable institutions emphasize these components in day-to-day operations and in curriculum and research, thereby preparing students to recognize challenges, develop solutions, and model behaviors that contribute to a regenerative, healthful, beautiful, and just world.

Given this framework for sustainability in higher education, the UNCG Strategic Plan 2009-2014 incorporated the following “core value”:

Sustainability – Academics, operations, and outreach are conducted with careful attention to the enduring interconnectedness of social equity, the environment, the economy, and aesthetics.

The members of the committee who developed that Strategic Plan used the following working definition:

Sustainability is the enduring interconnectedness of social equity, the environment, economy, and aesthetics. This interconnectedness provides a foundation from which to discover, implement, and enrich sustainable principles and practice. The intent of sustainability is to instill values that promote justice, invent innovative approaches and solutions to environmental and economic challenges, and invest civility and grace into our communities.

The UNCG Strategic Plan 2009-2014 called for the development of a Sustainability Council that formed during the fall of 2011 to “support activities in academics and sustainable practices.” The intent of this document is to articulate the purpose, scope, and membership of the Sustainability Council and to clarify its operational procedures.
Article 1: Mission, Commitment, and Principles

Section 1: Mission
The Sustainability Council supports and promotes efforts by the university community to address sustainability in operations and academics at UNCG.

Section 2: Commitments of UNCG to Sustainability

- Chancellor Linda Brady signs the American College and University Presidents' Climate Commitment (ACUPCC), October 2011.
- UNCG becomes a charter member of the Sustainability Tracking, Assessment and Rating System (STARS) in July 2011.

Section 3: Sustainability Principles
Together we are moving toward a sustainable future and leading by example with these principles supporting all of our actions and plans. Therefore, the Sustainability Council is committed to:

A. UNCG recognizes the inextricable connections between nature, society, economy, and aesthetics. To respect this interconnectedness, the university will use a holistic and transparent approach to decision-making across the campus that generates economic, environmental, social and cultural values in everyday practice on campus and in our surrounding communities.

B. UNCG acknowledges the unity of humanity and nature and emphasizes natural systems as the model of appropriate design. Natural systems utilize renewable energy and have no concept of waste. They are also characterized by diversity, interdependence, and regenerative growth, defining characteristics of healthy academic environments as well. The university will actively shift its university practices toward products and processes that mimic natural systems.

C. UNCG will support human and environmental health through its own decisions and practices. Human health and wellness are tied directly to environmental health. The university will pursue using materials and activities that have no harmful effects on human or environmental health. Accompanying this commitment is an emphasis on creating a physical campus at UNCG that promotes healthy activity.

D. UNCG will champion social justice and equity, mutual cultural respect, and inclusiveness. The university will encourage the university community to honor diversity in its myriad combinations through our practices, policies, teaching, research, and service.

E. UNCG appreciates that appealing to our senses is as important as appealing to our minds. Beyond the sensory, however, there is also a beauty when people and systems perform at their best. UNCG WeThe Council will encourage the university to strive for civility and beauty in all its-our endeavors.

F. UNCG understands the need for stewardship of all its resources, including financial ones. Concomitantly, UNCG the Council recognizes that materials and activities that enhance the natural and social environments are financially beneficial. Loss or degradation of these systems must be considered expenses, and the Council will advocate for these costs must to be considered part of UNCG's any budget calculus.

G. UNCG has committed to helping UNCG become a sustainable institution. UNCG is comprised of many individuals with personal choices that will affect our campus carbon footprint, our interactions with the community, and our financial success.
